Understanding the Commonwealth Home Support Programme

Understanding the Commonwealth Home Support Programme (CHSP)

At NovaCare, we know that staying safe, well, and connected at home and in your community is important to you. That's why many of our consumers receive support through the Commonwealth Home Support Programme (CHSP)—an Australian Government initiative that provides entry-level support for older people who need a little help to maintain their independence.

CHSP services are funded by the government and are designed to support a large number of older Australians with entry-level needs, so it must be shared carefully to ensure as many people as possible can access the help they need.

Home Care Packages (HCP) Program offers more comprehensive support for those with greater care needs. Sometimes people feel confused—or even frustrated—about who is paying for what, especially when services appear similar but are funded differently.

Consumers receiving Home Care Packages (HCP) usually have more complex or ongoing care needs that require a higher level of support. Because of this, the government assigns individual funding to HCP consumers to help manage and pay for the wider range of services they may need—such as medication assistance, or daily personal support. This is different from the CHSP, where support is more limited and shared across the community. While this difference in funding can be confusing or feel unfair at times, it reflects the greater level of care required under the HCP program.

Everyone's situation is different, and sometimes it's not obvious why someone might be receiving Home Care Package (HCP) funding—especially when their needs aren't immediately visible. We're here to help clarify how your support is funded and what that means for you.

My Aged Care

If you or someone you care for has recently had a reassessment through My Aged Care (MAC) and been approved for additional services, including a Home Care Package (HCP), it's important to let us know as soon as possible.

Staying informed about any changes to your funding or support level helps us ensure:

- Your care plan is updated appropriately
- You receive the right services at the right time
- We avoid any interruptions to your existing support
- Your transition to new funding (such as a HCP) is smooth and well-coordinated

Even if you're awaiting your HCP to be assigned, please let us know once you've been approved so we can help get additional services in place that support you to stay living in your own home safely.

If you're unsure whether your reassessment has led to changes or have any questions about what this means, feel free to reach out—we're here to help.

Please contact us on 1300 363 654 to update your information or discuss your next steps.
